The Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation Program in Buddhist Studies - New Professorships

WELCOME TO THE ONLINE APPLICATION FOR THE ROBERT H. N. HO FAMILY FOUNDATION NEW PROFESSORSHIPS IN BUDDHIST STUDIES.

New Professorships in Buddhist studies offer multi-year grants to colleges and universities wishing to establish or expand teaching in Buddhist Studies.

- Institutions of higher education worldwide are eligible to apply for grants up to $300,000 (to be expended over four years) in support of new teaching positions in Buddhist studies.
- Award funds should be used only for the new professor's salary, benefits, and research expenses, not for indirect or administrative costs, or office expenses.
- In addition, applicant institutions are eligible to request funds for costs related to a competitive search for the proposed position. The total amount requested must not exceed the $300,000 maximum.
- A letter must be attached to the application from the institution's president, vice-chancellor, rector, provost, or dean expressing the institution's commitment to maintain the seeded position as a permanent, tenure-track post after the expiration of The Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation funding. At institutions without a tenure-track system, the applicant must commit to continuing the position for a substantial period after the expiration of grant funding and must provide a description of how this commitment fits its contractual practices.
- The heart of the application is a statement outlining the proposed position—its responsibilities, departmental location, its rank, the fit with the institution's mission and curricular plans, and the qualifications sought in potential appointees. The statement should describe the process of identifying the appointee.

Completed applications must be submitted online no later than 9 pm, Eastern Standard Time, January 11, 2017. Notifications will be sent by May 31, 2017.

Eligibility

- Institutions of higher education worldwide, accredited colleges and universities, are eligible to apply.
- The application must be written in English.
- This is a global competition. There are no restrictions as to the location of the institution or the language(s) of instruction.
- Applications must include a multi-year plan for matching at least 1/3 of Foundation funding over the grant period, but the matching ratio need not be the same each year. (Please see a sample schedule for sequenced funding that meets the matching requirement here.)

Award Details

- Award funds should be used only for the new professor's salary, benefits, and research expenses, not for indirect or administrative costs, or office expenses.
- No university overhead is permitted.
- Applicant institutions are eligible to request funds for costs related to a competitive search for the proposed position. The total amount requested must not exceed the $300,000 maximum award.

The Application Process

A representative from the applicant institution must apply in the name of the college/university. This person will be responsible for completing the application, uploading all required documents, and submitting the application before the deadline. She/he will also be responsible for all correspondence with ACLS regarding this competition and the award, if granted.

Application Requirements

- Completed application form submitted through the Online Fellowship Application system
- A letter from the institution's president, vice-chancellor, rector, provost, or dean expressing the institution's commitment to maintain the seeded position as a permanent, tenure-track post after the expiration of funding from The Robert H. N. Ho Family Foundation. The letter should state why the institution wishes to develop Buddhist studies. (no more than 3 single-spaced pages in Times New Roman 11 point font)

At institutions without a tenure-track system, the applicant must commit to continuing the position for a substantial period after the expiration of grant funding and must provide a description of how this commitment fits its contractual practices.

- Budget submitted by the institution detailing all expenses, using the following categories: salary, benefits, research expenses, and, if applicable, costs related to a competitive search for the proposed position
- Application statement outlining the new proposed position—its responsibilities, departmental location, its rank, the fit with the institution's mission and curricular plans, and the qualifications sought in potential appointees. Please describe the process of identifying the appointee. (no more than 15 double-spaced pages in Times New Roman 11 point font)

Selection Criteria

Peer reviewers in this program will evaluate all eligible proposals using the following criteria:

- The institution's commitment to establishing a tenure-track position in Buddhist Studies or the equivalent in systems without a tenure system
- Coherence and cogency of presentation
- Feasibility of the proposed budget and plan of establishing the new position
- The institution's record in teaching and research
