This position is only available through the Leading Edge Fellowship program. You may not contact the host institution to inquire about this position.
Responsibilities and tasks:

- Work closely with the Executive Director and key staff members to review, analyze, and curate the Religions Texas oral history archive
- In collaboration with IDCL staff, plan and produce a multimedia web exhibit that will create conversations between interviews, highlight themes and topics, and foster public engagement with archival materials
- Plan and produce an accompanying curriculum or discussion guide that will support public understanding of religious and cultural diversity in Texas
- Drawing from religious studies, historical, sociological, and pedagogical scholarship, gather additional research or content for the multimedia exhibit and curriculum guide as needed
- Promote and disseminate the exhibit to stakeholders and a public audience through blogging, social media, op-eds, or other forms of promotional writing or public scholarship.
- Assist in assessing and identifying next steps, including funding proposals, for the Religions Texas initiative.

Qualifications:

- PhD in any field of the humanities or humanistic social sciences. Read more about eligible fields here;
- Excellent writing and research presentation skills;
- Familiarity with tools of digital humanities, such as Omeka and StoryMap, and/or comfort with learning new technologies;
- Excellent project management and organizational skills and detail-oriented approach;
- Interest in oral history, public narrative, public humanities, and the public understanding of religion;
- Alignment with IDCL’s mission and values and the exercise of scholarship in service of equity.

APPLICATIONS

- Information on the Leading Edge Fellowship Program: https://www.acls.org/Competitions-and-Deadlines/Leading-Edge-Fellowships
- All applications must be submitted through the ACLS Online Fellowship Application System (ofa.acls.org)
- Application deadline: 9pm EDT, May 6, 2021