 Team Member #1

Please list all of the key collaborators on the project team. Do not list the PI as a collaborator in this section. For the purposes of this grant, collaborators and contributors are broadly defined as the following:

- Collaborators are named partners who are involved in the full lifecycle of the project, including the planning, execution, analysis, and final output, and whose contributions are integral to the project's core intellectual and logistical delivery. They are identified in advance and typically have an ongoing relationship to the project over its duration. This category may include but is not limited to institutional partners, community organizations, media producers, or others whose participation is central to the project's goals.

- Contributors (or one-time/limited contributors) are individuals or organizations whose involvement is bounded, specific, or technical in nature. They may provide expertise, services, or input at a particular stage of the project without being responsible for its overall direction or delivery. This category may include but is not limited to freelancers, consultants, and technical specialists contracted for defined tasks, as well as scholars invited to participate in a single event or activity.

Institutional Statement

Institutional Statement

Applicants must designate one institution as an official fiduciary host of this grant. As the official fiduciary, the institution receives the grant funds and legally manages them. ACLS will ask a representative from the host institution to confirm the following through an online form. The institutional representative should be a senior official (i.e., a dean, provost, president, or other appropriate senior administrator). This is not a reference letter. It does not require the representative to assess the scholarly ambitions of the proposed project. The institutional representative will confirm that:

- the outlined budget is acceptable to the institution
- the institution will administer the proposed grant funds in accordance with the project budget and timeline
- not more than 5% of the total grant amount will be used to cover the cost of administering funds for the project. Direct costs will only include costs associated with the outlined work plan.

It is your responsibility to convey information about your proposal and this process to your institutional representative. After your institutional representative agrees to write on your behalf:

- Tell your institutional representative to expect an email from ACLS.
- Enter the institutional representative's name and professional email address by clicking on the "Add Recommender" button at the bottom of this page. You must enter your institutional representative on the Institutional Statement page BEFORE they can log in to use the online form.
- Once you have entered the information and clicked the "send email" button, an email will be automatically sent with appropriate instructions to the institutional representative.
- You can return to this screen at any time to enter an institutional representative.

No more than one institutional statement will be accepted.

- Enter only one institutional representative. It is possible to enter additional institutional representatives, but you should do this only if you learn that an institutional representative is unable to complete the promised statement.
- The first institutional statement submitted will be the statement on file in support of your application. Once one statement has been submitted, another institutional representative attempting to submit a statement for you will be prevented from doing so.

If you learn that your institutional representative did not receive an email with instructions, enter the information again using the "Add Recommender" button to have the email sent again. If the institutional representative has begun your statement, you will not be able to enter the information again.

The institutional statement is due by November 24, 2026. It is your responsibility to check online to see whether a statement has been submitted. The system will continue to accept statements after the deadline and will add them to your application at the earliest possible time, though we cannot guarantee that they will accompany your application through our entire review process if submitted after the deadline.

No recommenders entered. Click the "Add Recommender" button to request a letter.
